

BA in Health & Community Services

School of Public Health and Social Policy
Faculty of Human and Social Development
University of Victoria

Are you passionate about making a practical contribution to health and well-being in communities and reducing inequalities in health?

The BA in Health and Community Services is ideally suited for those who want to support health and social service organizations to provide just, effective, inclusive and community-sensitive services. This undergraduate program is focused on community-based approaches to health promotion, disease and injury prevention and the coordinated provision of effective health and community services. Using a skills-based curriculum the program prepares graduates for current and emerging positions in health and community services including governmental and non-profit organizations, primary care, home care, community care, health promotion and public health. Graduates will be proficient in providing system, program, research and administrative support. Develop your skills and passion with one of three priority populations: Older Adults, Persons with Disabilities or Indigenous People.

We also offer a Masters in Public Health and a Graduate Diploma in Public Health in a flexible online learning format.

For more information:

<http://www.uvic.ca/publichealth>

Potential Applicants Contact

Joan Gillie, Program Manager
School of Public Health and Social Policy
E-mail: kgillie@uvic.ca
Telephone: 250-853-3845

Develop skills in

- Critical and creative thinking
- Research literacy
- Inter professional team work
- Problem solving
- Cultural safety and competency
- Ethical reasoning and action
- Program planning
- Project management
- Human resource and fiscal management
- Grant funding and grant management
- Community development
- Basic policy development & implementation

And more!

- A career that improves the health and well-being of your community
- That improves people's quality of life
- Flexible, online learning that prepares you for a job in the health and community sectors

Begin this program in September 2012!